Bamboo cutter's daughter. Aim This module considers the importance of people across the systems engineering life-cycle, both within the context of organisations and how they function and the production of physically engineered systems for a range of stakeholders. Probably the same idea occurred to each one of them as to Ryabovitch: would there ever come a time for them when, like Von Rabbek, they would have a large house, a family, a garden -- when they, too, would be able to welcome people, even though insincerely, feed them, make them drunk and contented.
